

FOR YOUR CLASSES, COURSES AND PROJECTS ON:

Militarism and Globalization,
Masculinity of War and Violence Against Women,
Empathy and Peace Making

"Unmaking War, Remaking Men should be a required text for every college freshman, male and female. I, along with my students, found the concepts of core-masculinity, empathy, expendability and their intersection with patriotism, racism and religion a source of meaningful, engaged and sincere discussion. It will be a required text selection for the remainder of my teaching life. Thank you, Dr. Kathleen Barry, for this wonderful gift to this and future generations."

Professor Fritz Pointer, author, A Passion to Liberate: Alex LaGuma's South Africa

Published in the U.S., Phoenix Rising Press of Santa Rosa www.unmakingwar.net

$17.95 paperback, ISBN: 978098279602

Ebook: Kindle, Ipad, Booknook - ISBN 9780982796719

Australia, New Zealand, Spinifex Press: <http://www.spinifexpress.com.au/Bookstore/book/id=209/>

India: Women Unlimited: <http://womenunlimited.net/>

For information and textbook orders contact: unmakingwar@gmail.com 707-328-4290 see: www.unmakingwar.net

NEW!! – Kathleen Barry is offer one and two day experiential workshops: Making Change! and Thinking Through Writing as well as weekend or week long seminars and short courses based on Unmaking War, Remaking Men.

UNMAKING WAR, REMAKING MEN
HOW EMPATHY CAN RESHAPE OUR POLITICS, OUR SOLDIERS AND OURSELVES

Kathleen Barry, feminist sociologist and Professor Emerita, answers the perennial question: Is war inevitable? with an emphatic "no." She studies soldiers' experiences in combat through a politics of empathy. This book reveals a "core masculinity" that crosses cultures and national borders despite the diversity of masculinity. The author reveals the harm of military training that drums empathy out of new recruits as they are trained to be remorseless killers. Combat requires expendable lives the cost of which may be loss of one's own soul.

This book uniquely connects blinding macho in violence against women at home with the intensive training into it by state militaries and resistance militias alike for war. It examines the problems of state sovereignty which stands in the way of global demilitarization and probes the psychopathic leadership from George W. Bush to Ariel Sharon to Osama bin Laden showing how remorseless indifference to human life sets the stage for war crimes.

Kathleen Barry asks: 'What would it take to unmake war?' which leads her to a radically altered vision of the United Nations including a reformulation of state sovereignty and a global peace-making force. By scrutinizing the demilitarized state of Costa Rica by revealing the extent to which its claims of peace are underscored with its high rate of violence against women. Ending war, she finds, requires remaking masculinity, a change already under way in many men, including those who, in resisting and refusing combat, transform their lives into a new kind of humanity.

Cynthia Enloe author of Globalization and Militarism says "Kathleen Barry shows in her book how empathy threatens those who promote the militarization of masculinity while simultaneously providing an antidote. She has done deep thinking – thinking that all of us will be made smarter by!"

"With the courageous vision, scrupulous scholarship, and heartfelt writing that has illumined her books on female sexual slavery, Kathleen Barry here focuses her laser-like intelligence on violence, militarism, and core masculinity." Unmaking War, Remaking Men makes the connections that could save us all. Ignore this book at your peril." Robin Morgan, Demon Lover